CHALLENGES IN SALES TRAINING

A lack of skills and experience is impacting revenue.

36% of organizations believe their sales reps miss targets because they don’t have the right skills or experience to close deals.

Poor L&D makes under-performing reps – while great reps leave.

3X Top sales performers are 3X more likely to have a good or excellent onboarding experience. 50% have left a job because of poor onboarding.

Sales reps practice on (and burn) their pipeline.

75% of sales reps prefer to “learn by doing”, speaking to leads and practicing their skills on real prospects, rather than take online courses.

Sales managers are overburdened.

52% Sales managers remain the most common resource reps turn to when they seek the information needed to do their job.

Digital human sales trainers are helping to solve all of these issues?

Digital humans are interactive, AI-powered avatars. We train them on your business, your buyer personas, your products or services, your L&D resources, your brand guidelines, and your processes.

They then roleplay with sales reps to simulate real sales conversations. They provide on-the-spot feedback, and give managers visibility over training and performance.
